Dear Hiring Manager,

The Legal Assistant role at Mallory Pryce appeals to me because my background spans both property disputes and client-facing case management, which maps directly onto what the role requires across property and private client work.

During my year at BCLP I spent six months in the Real Estate Disputes team, where I prepared electronic hearing bundles, assisted with skeleton arguments, conducted legal research on rights of light, easements and landlord and tenant matters, and maintained matter records on iManage. I also handled court filings, tracked deadlines across several concurrent matters and managed large volumes of documents with competing time pressures. That experience taught me how to keep cases moving efficiently when fee earners are under pressure, which is the practical core of what this role describes.

The client-facing side of the role is something I have developed further since then. At Citizens Advice East Berkshire I interview clients across housing, welfare and family matters, take detailed factual statements, draft correspondence and prepare document schedules, all while keeping case records up to date and meeting submission deadlines. Many of those clients are in difficult circumstances, so communicating clearly and carefully about procedural requirements is not a background skill but a daily one. That combination of organised case management and direct client communication is what the role is asking for.

I also have some exposure to the private client dimension through my LLB modules and my research at Citizens Advice into welfare benefits and related statutory criteria, which involved assessing individual eligibility against regulatory frameworks and identifying evidential gaps. It is not a substitute for direct private client caseload experience, but it means I understand how to work carefully with individual rather than purely corporate matters.

I want a role where I can build a sustained caseload across property and private client rather than rotating through practice areas, and the breadth of this position alongside the firm's stated focus on professional development makes it the right next step for where I am now.

Yours sincerely,
Maria Silva
