Dear Hiring Manager,

I am applying for the Legal Assistant role with Essential Employment because my background in managing case files, drafting legal documentation and handling competing deadlines translates directly into the conveyancing support this position requires.

At BCLP, I managed large volumes of documents across several active matters at the same time. In the Real Estate Disputes rotation, I prepared electronic hearing bundles, assisted with court materials and tracked deadlines across multiple files, using iManage to maintain accurate matter records. That experience gave me a practical understanding of how property disputes arise when conveyancing goes wrong, which has made me want to work further upstream in the transaction process itself.

My current role at Citizens Advice East Berkshire has developed the end-to-end file management the job description emphasises. I take instructions, establish chronologies, identify evidential gaps, draft correspondence, prepare document schedules and bring matters to submission within required timescales. I have done this across housing and debt matters where procedural accuracy matters: missing a deadline or omitting required documentation has real consequences for the client. That focus on procedural completeness is what SDLT returns and Land Registry applications demand, and it is how I already approach casework.

I also have a foundation in legal documentation more broadly. At Adobe I reviewed and amended commercial agreements, flagged provisions requiring attention and communicated changes to stakeholders across different teams. That experience reinforced the habit of reading documents carefully for what is missing or inconsistent, not just for what is there.

What draws me to this role is the opportunity to take responsibility for a caseload of property transactions from start to finish. My experience so far has mostly involved supporting qualified lawyers on stages of a matter. Managing files through the full conveyancing cycle, including SDLT submissions and Land Registry applications, is a concrete next step that builds on that foundation in a way I can point to clearly.

I am available immediately and happy to discuss how my experience fits the role.

Yours sincerely,
Maria Silva
