Dear Hiring Manager,

I am applying for the Property Paralegal/Legal Assistant role at Mallory Pryce because my practical experience in real estate disputes and residential case management has given me a working knowledge of property matters that I want to develop further in a transactional setting.

During my year at Bryan Cave Leighton Paisner, I spent six months in the Real Estate Disputes team supporting active litigation involving rights of light, easements, leasehold issues and landlord and tenant disputes. That work required me to manage document-heavy matters under real deadline pressure: I prepared electronic hearing bundles, assisted with skeleton arguments and court materials, maintained matter records on iManage and tracked competing deadlines across several files simultaneously. Working at that pace on property matters gave me a grounding in the substantive issues that come up in residential transactions and an appreciation of how careful file management affects the quality of work that reaches fee-earners and clients.

At Citizens Advice East Berkshire, where I have been advising clients since July 2026, I have handled housing and benefit matters from initial interview through to submission. I take detailed factual statements, identify evidential gaps, draft correspondence and prepare document schedules, all while keeping confidential case records and communicating clearly with clients who are often anxious or unfamiliar with legal processes. The client care element of this role is something I have found consistently demanding and genuinely interesting: translating procedural requirements into plain guidance matters as much as the legal analysis itself.

I am drawn to this role specifically because it combines the property focus I developed at BCLP with the direct client and case-progression work I do at Citizens Advice. A transactional property caseload at a firm that values professional development is a logical next step from both: I have the administrative and research foundations in place and I want to develop them in a conveyancing and transactions context.

I am available to start with reasonable notice and would welcome the chance to discuss my application further.

Yours sincerely,
Maria Silva
