Dear Hiring Manager,

The litigation paralegal role at Jameson Legal appeals to me because the work sits precisely where my practical experience is strongest: complex, cross-border disputes combining litigation and arbitration. My year at BCLP and my current advisory work at Citizens Advice East Berkshire have given me direct, hands-on exposure to the tasks the role involves.

At BCLP I supported an investment arbitration across six months, and a real estate disputes team for the following six. In the arbitration team I reviewed and organised evidence for procedural submissions, drafted procedural orders and procedural histories, and amended sections of the Claimant's memorial. Shortly before a significant deadline I became the only junior supporting the team, which meant coordinating outstanding documents, tracking actions and helping ensure the submission went out on time. That experience is directly relevant to the bundle preparation, document review and case administration responsibilities in this role. In real estate disputes I prepared electronic hearing bundles, assisted with skeleton arguments and court materials, handled court filings and monitored deadlines across several matters running at the same time. I also used iManage daily for matter records, which reflects the kind of case management and filing systems likely to be in use in a firm of this kind.

At Citizens Advice I manage matters end to end: taking detailed client statements, identifying evidential issues, drafting correspondence, preparing document schedules and meeting submission deadlines. Clients often come in with sensitive and complicated situations, so translating procedural requirements into clear guidance is a consistent part of the work. That keeps my client-facing communication sharp alongside the more technical case-preparation tasks.

My LLM in Comparative and International Dispute Resolution at Queen Mary, which I am completing this year, has deepened my understanding of cross-border procedural issues and international arbitration, which sits well with the firm's focus on complex, multi-jurisdictional disputes. I have also attended London International Disputes Week and a King's College London seminar on abuse of process in international arbitration, because I wanted exposure to the profession beyond my immediate work.

I am looking for a permanent role in a specialist disputes firm where the work is substantive and the caseload is complex, and the description of Jameson Legal's practice fits that precisely.

Yours sincerely,
Maria Silva
