Dear Hiring Manager,

I am applying for the Paralegal role at Ascend Consulting because my background in managing case files from instruction through to completion, combined with my experience handling leasehold and landlord and tenant matters at BCLP, gives me a practical starting point for residential conveyancing work.

At BCLP's Real Estate Disputes team I worked across leasehold issues, easements, rights of light and landlord and tenant disputes. I prepared electronic hearing bundles, reviewed large volumes of documents across several concurrent matters, assisted with court filings and maintained matter records on iManage. Managing competing deadlines across multiple files while keeping records accurate and up to date is something I did regularly, and that discipline translates directly to running conveyancing transactions efficiently alongside a supervising solicitor.

At Citizens Advice I have managed matters end to end, taking detailed instructions from clients, drafting correspondence, preparing document schedules and meeting submission deadlines. Many of my clients find legal processes difficult to follow, so I have developed a clear habit of translating procedural requirements into straightforward, practical guidance. Working closely with clients and referrers in the way this role requires is something I am already doing day to day.

What draws me to this role specifically is the opportunity to build conveyancing experience from instruction through to exchange under close supervision. My real estate disputes work at BCLP gave me an understanding of property law issues in a contentious context, and I want to develop that into transactional conveyancing practice. Ascend's growth trajectory means that the volume and variety of transactions are likely to build my competence quickly, which is exactly the environment I am looking for at this stage.

I am available at short notice for interview and would welcome the chance to discuss the role further.

Yours sincerely,
Maria Silva
