Dear Hiring Manager,

The paralegal role at Brandon James appeals to me because it sits at the intersection of disputes and technically complex subject matter, and my background in both commercial litigation support and regulatory research gives me a practical foundation to contribute from the start.

At BCLP I spent six months supporting an international investment arbitration. I reviewed and organised evidence for procedural submissions, drafted procedural histories and orders, and amended sections of the Claimant's memorial. When I became the only junior on the team shortly before a significant deadline, I coordinated outstanding documents across the file and tracked actions to ensure on-time submission. That experience developed my ability to manage competing priorities on a live matter without supervision, which is directly relevant to progressing cases in a busy paralegal environment.

My real estate disputes rotation added a different dimension to that practical base. I prepared electronic hearing bundles, assisted with skeleton arguments, conducted legal and factual research on landlord and tenant issues, and managed large volumes of confidential documents across several matters simultaneously. Working across two distinct practice areas in a single year meant adapting quickly to different procedural requirements and client expectations, something I expect to do again across patent litigation, competition, technology and construction disputes.

At Citizens Advice I have taken on independent case management, drafting correspondence, preparing document schedules and maintaining confidential records from instruction to submission. Explaining procedural rules clearly to clients who are often under significant pressure has sharpened how I communicate legal information in plain terms, which matters in any client-facing paralegal role.

Brandon James's focus on life sciences and technology is a genuine draw. My LLM dissertation examined how GDPR developed across jurisdictions, and at Q-Legal I advised a data-driven start-up on UK GDPR obligations including children's data and adtech. That background means I am not starting from scratch when legal issues touch on data, technology or regulatory compliance.

I am looking for a role where the work is substantive from the outset and where there is room to develop across practice areas. This opportunity matches both of those things.

Yours sincerely,
Maria Silva
