I am applying for the Residential Conveyancing Paralegal role at your Marlow office. I am drawn to the position because of the firm's reputation for high-quality work, genuine career development, and a people-focused culture — the kind of environment where I work best.

My background is predominantly in dispute resolution and client-facing advisory work, and I want to be straightforward about that: I am making a deliberate move into residential conveyancing, and I am doing so with a clear sense of the transferable foundation I bring.

At BCLP, I spent six months in the Real Estate Disputes team supporting hearing preparation, drafting court materials, conducting title and leasehold research, and managing large volumes of documents across competing deadlines. The subject matter — rights of light, easements, landlord and tenant disputes — gave me early exposure to property law in a transactional and litigation context. I understand how property matters are structured, how title issues surface and why accuracy at the document stage matters for everything downstream.

Alongside that, I have spent the past year as a Legal Adviser at Citizens Advice, managing client matters from instruction through to submission. I take detailed factual statements, draft correspondence, prepare document schedules, and translate complex procedural requirements into clear, practical guidance — often for clients navigating stressful and time-sensitive situations. Client service is not an add-on for me; it is central to how I have worked across every role.

I am organised, deadline-conscious, and comfortable managing competing priorities without losing attention to detail. I pick up processes quickly, and I am motivated to build my conveyancing knowledge properly under the supervision of an experienced team.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss the role further. I am available at short notice for interview and can start promptly.

Thank you for considering my application.
