Dear Hiring Manager,

I am applying for the Onboarding Paralegal role at G2 Legal because the client-facing focus and conveyancing context match experience I have built deliberately, and because working within a technology-driven legal business is a direction I want to develop in.

At Citizens Advice East Berkshire, where I have worked as a Legal Adviser since July 2026, I am typically the first point of contact for clients who arrive with urgent or unfamiliar legal problems. I take detailed instructions, establish what each client actually needs, explain their options in plain terms and manage the matter through to completion. Many of the people I advise are under financial or personal pressure, so I have learned to communicate clearly and carefully from the very first conversation. That client-facing discipline, from initial contact through to a clear outcome, maps directly onto what an onboarding role requires.

My year at BCLP gave me a grounding in the practical side of managing files and meeting deadlines under pressure. During the international arbitration rotation I became, at one point, the only junior supporting the team shortly before a significant procedural deadline. I coordinated outstanding documents, tracked actions across the matter and helped ensure the submission went in on time. In the real estate disputes rotation I prepared electronic court bundles, maintained matter records on iManage and assisted with hearing arrangements across several concurrent matters. I am comfortable managing a high volume of enquiries and following up systematically, which I understand is central to converting prospective clients into instructions in this role.

I am drawn to G2 Legal specifically because of its investment in AI to improve the conveyancing process. At Adobe I reviewed data-processing and licensing agreements while working alongside commercial and technical teams, which gave me some exposure to how legal and technology functions interact. I have continued to follow that area since then. A legal business that is genuinely rethinking how conveyancing is delivered, rather than simply digitising the existing process, is somewhere I can contribute and learn in the right direction.

I am based in Maidenhead and the hybrid arrangement suits me well. I would welcome the chance to discuss the role further.

Yours sincerely,
Maria Silva
