Dear Hiring Manager,

I am applying for the Residential Conveyancing Paralegal role at the North London firm you are representing because my background in property law, file management and client communication maps directly onto what the role requires.

During my year at Bryan Cave Leighton Paisner, I spent six months in the Real Estate Disputes team supporting a range of leasehold, landlord and tenant, and rights of light matters. I prepared electronic hearing bundles, assisted with skeleton arguments and court materials, and maintained matter records on iManage across several files running simultaneously with competing deadlines. That work gave me a working familiarity with property law concepts and the kind of structured file management that residential conveyancing demands from instruction through to completion.

Beyond that placement, I have been advising clients at Citizens Advice East Berkshire since July 2026 on housing matters alongside welfare, employment and debt work. In practice, that means taking detailed factual statements, identifying evidential gaps, drafting correspondence, preparing document schedules and keeping case records accurate and up to date. Many of the clients I work with are in difficult circumstances, so translating procedural requirements into clear and usable guidance is something I do regularly. That client-facing work, across a high volume of matters with real deadlines, is directly transferable to liaising with clients, estate agents and solicitors on a conveyancing file.

I hold a 2:1 LLB from UCL, where I studied Commercial Law and Company Law alongside core subjects, and I am currently completing an LLM in Comparative and International Dispute Resolution at Queen Mary. My academic grounding in property-related legal concepts, combined with hands-on file management and client communication experience, means I can contribute to a busy conveyancing team from an early stage rather than needing an extended settling-in period.

This role is a practical next step: it sits in the geographic area I am targeting, it is office-based which suits how I work best, and it gives me the opportunity to develop residential conveyancing experience in a structured team environment. I am available to discuss the role at your convenience.

Yours sincerely,
Maria Silva
